NO. 11.

A Plucky Woman of National Renown Dr. Mary Walker is a plucky little body. She still persists in wearing the man's garb, which she must have worn, we guess, for nearly 40 years, if not for In the Matter of the Estate of J. J. half a century. She was young when she first wore it, but though not as young now as she then was she wears it proud-ly as ever. When last seen out west, her tall, glossy tile sat over her short hair, tinged with the melancholy gray; her yellow spotted necktie looked neat; her black cloth trousers and coat were a perfect fit; her shoes were low, and she tripped along lightly, though not as of

When she came out in this attire ever so long ago, she was ridiculed and caricatured, but she did not give it up. When she walked out, she was laughed at by women and men, but she stuck to it. When she stood on the platform, she was guyed by the audience, but she did not care for that. She had made up her mind on the subject, and that was the end of it. According to a Chicago pa-per, her face has now an expression of grim determination, and thus far it is a reflex of her soul.

She does not belong to the Turkish school of Chautauqua dress reformers which raised an uproar last year, or to the Bloomer school, or to the divided skirt school. She has her own ideas, and all the winds that blow cannot change them. Dr. Mary Walker is an interesting lady, a very persistent reformer, a gentle member of her sex, a woman deserving of respect notwithstanding her whim. Strange that her example has had so little influence.—New York Sun.

Kangaroo Rats of the Arid Region. Death valley, that curious depression where men die of thirst with water in their canteens, has flowers and animals of its own. Much of the valley is far below the level of the sea, and so hot and dry is it that birds flying over are said to fall dead on the alkali. It is not very wide, but no man can cross the flaming desert when the sun is high. Yet some animals live on it. These are all small and peculiar. There are rats and mice that look like kangaroos seen through the small end of an opera glass. They have the disproportionate hind legs of the kangaroo, the over developed tail and the feeble front paws. Their manner of progression is that of the Austra-lian beast. They sit up on their strong hind legs and when they move they go by great leaps.

Prospectors first brought the stories of kangaroo rats from the desert, but they were thought to be mythical until the United States government sent its scientists into the country a couple of years ago. They saw the jumping things and brought out many specimens. The wan-dering scientists found that while the rodents differed from the common rats and mice in length of limb and strength of tail their habits were still those of house vermin. They gnawed the tents and provision sacks, raised havoc witi. the flour and were generally a nuisance around camp. The scientists had the fun of watching coyotes chase the uncanny jumping rats, which, however, were usually too spry to be caught .-San Francisco Examiner.

Strange Experience of a Letter. A lady in London wished to communicate with a friend in America, whose address she did not know. In order to obtain the needed information she wrote to another friend, who also lived in the new world. The letter was duly dis-sea bottom. They were eventually recovered, however, and the letter in question, torn and discolored, found its way back to the sender. While subjecting it to a minute examination, the lady was surprised to find part of another letter adhering to it, upon which epistle was the full ad-dress of the friend with whom she wished to correspond. In this strange way, without having reached its destination, her letter had brought to her the answer desired.—London Tit-Bits.

Water a Necessity In Kentucky. Our guests will observe that, notwithstanding slanders to the contrary, there is an abundance of water in Kentucky Mint doesn't flourish without plenty water.-Louisville Courier-Journal.
